IN AND AROUND THE HOSPITAL.

It is very important to know the processes that must be adapted in nursing, the instruments that are applied. Manners and Good service as well as a professional

Focusing on the studies, elements and departments that are in a hospital, some of them can also be mentioned, their functions, with the intention of highlighting how necessary they are and the area they occupy within a hospital.

Some departments are: pharmacies (they are the ones who dispense medicine), cardiology (in charge of the heart), pathology (area that is in charge of studying diseases and analyzes samples), dermatology (studies about the skin, whether they are spots, allergies or other types of diseases found in it), pediatrics (is responsible for treating children's diseases), surgery (who performs operations on patients who require it. Among other departments are physiotherapy, hematology, obstetrics, kidney unit, orthopedics, etc. These are of vital importance since in the health section each one fulfills an essential function and work to improve the condition of the individual who needs it

For a good management, administration, supervision and many other areas, there is a basic and fully necessary element that is "communication", knowing how to guide or give instructions, however simple it seems, has a great complex of difficulties, good communication is The person responsible for a good interpretation, for this, knowing how to use such simple phrases and prepositions of place and movement, is vital, since it is not the same to say "you can contact the nurse on floor # 3" or "you can contact the nurse from floor # 3 ", good communication cannot always be through dialogue, there are many ways to do it, be it signs, written, but that does not diminish the importance of transmitting it with the best and most appropriate words that can define in the same way that a life is saved or dies, for this reason. William at the end of the comment makes the invitation and reflection not explicitly, but implicitly that regardless of the rank of the staff it is important to treat him with kindness and respect

Leaving aside the work departments in the hospital, the importance of good communication using the best language and prepositions of place and movement, the importance of each staff in a hospital and the best treatment that should be given to them. There is another much-needed area which is the materials and resources of doctors and patients in a hospital

In medical resources there is a great diversity of materials, each with a different function and others that have functions in common, many of them can be supplied, but many of them are irreplaceable and indisputably necessary, but on the other hand there are also the resources that the patient requires and in a hospital there should be some, such as crutches, wheelchairs, bandages, medications, casts, among others, it is worth mentioning that there are many more areas of work in a hospital, such as porters, accountants, drivers, more well- known as nurses, we give a Good presentation to Asia, the patient, Asia, those around us and also to know the necessary materials that are used either to channel inject ect or, at the same time, the istruments that are needed for any need for nursing.

CONCLUSION
