IMPORTANCE OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN THE CAREER AND THE BENEFITS.

The importance of the English language in my career or in the nursing field is the importance of it as a communication instrument and specifically its importance in the nursing field.

One of the main objectives is the job offer, to hold a conversation in English in a hospital or health center to be able to provide adequate nursing care to those who need it.

Knowledge of English is so necessary in the handling of instruction manuals for devices and instruments found in hospitals and outpatient clinics, as well as the use of computer programs, for us Nursing degree students it is very important to learn English. They place great value on the use of English in all areas of professional nursing practice and it provides us benefits since, in addition to helping us differentiate our job possibilities, they would increase having more than one language in our curriculum, providing us with job benefits.

Communication is essential, so knowing the terminology of medical English will be a fundamental aspect to be able to adequately explain to the patient what is happening to him.
