IMPORTANCE OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN OUR CAREERS (SPECIFICALLY NURSING)

This essay deals with an obvious issue in today's society: the importance of the English language as a communication instrument and specifically the importance for us as nurses to have a good command of the English language.

Nowadays, anywhere we will find words or complete phrases in English and it is important to have knowledge about the language, for example on internet pages where we will always find a word in English, this also applies to programs. As well as instrumentation and procedure guides.

An important advantage that we as nurses have when we know how to handle the English language is that we can migrate to other states and even to other countries since knowledge of the language opens up many possibilities for us to find new opportunities outside the home.

So we also know that English represents the most important language of international communication in all areas of human activity, not just nursing. For us as nurses it is essential that it is disseminated and universalized so that this can benefit as many patients as possible around the world.

In addition, we can attend international medical congresses, where the limitation is obvious and is only available to those who attend these meetings for the simple fact of having a command of the English language.
