

Nombre de alumnos: Jessenia Lizbeth Cruz Monzón

Nombre del profesor: María De Los Ángeles Rabelo Sulvaran

Nombre del trabajo: Ensayo

Materia: English

Grado: 1

Grupo: B

Nowadays it is very important to implement languages in life regardless of the work that we carry out because in that way we can communicate with people and for example as nurses we can reach a diagnosis or we can provide our patient with better care. professionals who are from abroad to be able to cover the deficit of health personnel who can speak two or more languages.

In other words, knowing languages is important to be able to communicate with people and to be able to cover their needs in a correct way since our job is to help patients to be able to maintain their health or to be able to recover it.

Agree the page es. sildeshare mentions that

"Learning is a mandatory part of any educational level to be able to access the world of knowledge"

This is understandable since there are more and more technological and scientific advances and therefore the information is mainly in the English language, this language is so important that it is considered a second language and nurses and students find it very important. useful since being able to speak English gives extra merits, either to be able to receive a job or a scholarship in this case it would be if we as nurses can exercise a second language we will have more opportunities in the workplace since that way we can provide better Attention to patients who speak this language or if we intend to pursue our career in another country, it will be of great help to learn it.

according to the page cuidados.wordpress.com

The handicap is what hinders or limits the capacity of a nurse or any health personnel, it also mentions that the main reason why nurses should learn English is because of research, since most publications in the area of nursing and medicine they are made in this language.

It is also necessary so that we can correctly handle the instruments found in hospitals and outpatient clinics, it is also important because devices that have technology are used either to fill in forms or to have a nurse-machine interaction.

In conclusion, there are many advantages of learning this language in the nursing field, since in this way we can have a better interaction between nurse-patient, it is also necessary due to technological advances and the variety of medical research, all this is essential to be able to practice nursing work.

Reference sources

care page.wordpress.com

Es.sildeshare