

Nombre de alumnos:

José francisco Ramírez Sánchez

Nombre del profesor:

Maria de los ángeles rabelo
sulvaran

Nombre del trabajo:

la importancia que tiene el idioma
ingles en la carrera y los beneficios

Materia:

Ingles

Grado:

1er Cuatrimestre

Grupo:

For us as undergraduate nursing students, learning English in all areas of professional practice is very important. However, what in daily life is a pending issue, in Nursing and in most of the health-related professions. It is very important to know how to handle English to cope with our profession, our employment and etc. Why is it important to learn English for Nursing? "In the first place, the first need that comes to mind when learning English is research, which is not surprising given that the vast majority of publications in the area of Medicine and Nursing are made in this language. The second reason why knowledge of English is so necessary is the use of instruction manuals for devices and instruments found in hospitals and outpatient clinics. the use of computer programs, which would be the third reason, since given the rapid advance of technology in all fields including Medicine, it is common to find oneself in situations where it is necessary to know English in order to understand the interactive language of the computer or the machinery" Finally, the fourth reason expressed by López Campillo to demonstrate the need for English in Nursing is the interaction with the foreign patient and / or their family or friends. "Spain is a country with a large influx of tourism and it is necessary for every nurse to have, at least, a minimum knowledge of English that would allow her to communicate with the patient and / or with their family or friends under certain conditions of guarantee. include not only direct interaction with them orally, but the power or having to communicate with the patient's general practitioner or specialist in extreme cases such as serious illness, or special treatments to which the patient may be subjected " he points out. To these four reasons stated by the author of the study, we must add the fact that the professional situation is at a time of job instability where many nurses decide to emigrate to countries where English becomes an essential tool for the development of their professional activity