"TIENE CORAZÓN"

THE MODEL
8 LEVELS OF ADOLESCENCE

THINKS
NON-ESSENTIALIST
"I HAVE TO"
"IT'S ALL IMPORTANT!"
"HOW CAN I FIT IT ALL IN?"

DOES
REACTS TO WHAT'S MOST PRESSING SAID "YES" TO PEOPLE WITHOUT REALLY THINKING
TRIES TO TAKE EXECUTION AT THE LAST MOMENT

GETS LIVES A LIFE THAT DOES NOT SUFFER
TAKES ON TOO MUCH, & WISHES SUFFER FEELS OUT OF CONTROL
IS UNSURE OF WHETHER THE RIGHT THINGS GOT DONE
OVERWHELMED & EXHAUSTED

ESSENTIALIST
"I CHOOSE TO"
"ONLY A FEW THINGS REALLY MATTER"
"WHAT ARE THE TRADE-OFFS?"

THE DISCIPLINED PURSUIT OF IDEAS
WANTS TO DISCERN WHAT REALLY MATTERS
SAYS "NO" TO EVERYTHING EXCEPT THE ESSENTIAL
REMOVES OBSTACLES TO HAVE EXECUTION EASY

LIVES A LIFE THAT REALLY MATTERS
CHOOSES CAREFULLY IN ORDER TO DO A GREAT WORK
FEEELS IN CONTROL
GETS THE RIGHT THINGS DONE
EXPERIENCES JOY IN THE JOURNEY

"every day do something that will make you closer to a better tomorrow."
- Doug Everett

decision - LATIN
→ cis/cid literally means "to cut" or "to kill"

essentially
* starts small - sets big results celebrates small acts of progress

essentially
* sets for the finished work
* makes the work-life balance with happen
* precise execution of the last minute
* finish that making things better when working
* involved to every word, every detail

"NO is a complete sentence"
- Anne Lamott

Play doesn't just help us to explore what is essential. It is essential in and of itself.

So how can we all introduce more play into our workplaces and our lives? In his book, Brown includes a primer to help readers re-connect with play. He suggests that readers mine their past for play memories. What did you do as a child that excited you? How can you re-create that today?
