1) SOBRE PROPER AND COMMON NOUNS Y POSSESSIVE.

This type of noun is classified as a common noun. Proper nouns are words used to signify specific people, places, things, and even ideas. Possessive nouns just.

Common nouns are probably the simplest form of nouns. They do not involve any complex structure so they are pretty easy to understand. Common nouns are simply words that are used to name common things, places, ideas, etc. They are not specified or actual names. Rather, they only depict a number of things under the same label. Common nouns are generic names. For example, if you use the word "dog", it would be a common noun. But if you use a more specific term like "German Shepherd", it would be counted as a proper noun.

You can find examples of common nouns in your everyday life. What do you see when you first open your eyes? your bed? the wall? the clock? All are common nouns. What do you see right after you walk out of your home? your car? plants? grass? All of these are also common nouns.

Possessive Nouns

Possessive nouns use grammatical constructions in a way to indicate possession. The ownership is shown by adding an "s" or an apostrophe at the end of the noun. Sometimes both are added.

Common and Proper Noun Summative. This can be used as a formative or Summative assessment to check student progress with Common and Proper Nouns.
