

Oswaldo Javier López
Álvarez

INGLES
PROF. ANDREA BERENICE SEGURA LEON

UDS
UNIVERSIDAD DEL SURESTE

TAREA

The happy prince

The happy prince is the story of a modest statue that dominates a city. This had been a prince with an easy and luxurious life, completely carefree of what was happening beyond the walls of his castle. Now it is tied to that immobile and sumptuous sculpture, bathed in gold and with precious stones. But now he's not happy. From his privileged hill he can observe the misery of the inhabitants of the city, the poverty that he previously did not know now becomes his pain, and every night he cries with impotence for not being able to help them.

One day, a swallow that passes through the city on its way to Africa, takes refuge at the foot of the statue to spend the night. When she sees her sadness, she sympathizes and agrees to help her, although she knows that she does not have much time, winter is already here and she has to emigrate to warmer lands where her companions are waiting for her.

The swallow, guided by the prince, is tearing out all the precious materials that cover it for the people who need it.

Symbols:

- Past continuous
- Characters
- Introduction
- Climax
- The end

Summary

The happy prince is story that gives us a great lesson in humanity, love and generosity, since it tells us the story of a statue of a prince that was made as a tribute to a prince who lived in that town a long time ago, he was known as the happy Prince, since for all the riches he had he always felt very happy, not knowing completely what was happening outside his castle, but all that changed the day he was tied to that statue, since from it he could see all the suffering that the inhabitants of that small town had, and what was most frustrating for him, is not being able to do anything to help them, but all that changed the night when a swallow came to rest at that statue, since that prince asked for her help to be able to bring to each of the inhabitants in need some precious stone that made up her beautiful statue, and the brave swallow fulfilled each of her requests, thus helping anyone who needed it, thus giving happiness to the prince again, since by helping the inhabitants of the town his heart felt truly happy for the first time.