

América Nahil Espinosa Cruz

Nutrición 2 Cuatrimestre

Materia: Ingles

Introducing:

Little Red Riding Hood is a story where the reader can vary in age since the plot is entertaining and what tries to imply that as children we should be more careful when meeting new people and not give them too much confidence if we are still very young and try always being surrounded by adults we trust or our family, that's why I recommend that you read the little red riding hood story because it is a very entertaining

Past continuous and future continuous:

- ✓ La abuelita estaba un poco enferma
- ✓ Little Red Riding Hood loved her grandmother very much
- ✓ lived far from home
- ✓ I was alone in the woods
- ✓ The door was open
- ✓ the girl was scared

Climax:

Little Red Hood is a girl who loved her grandmother very much; one day her mother gives her a basket of food to take to her grandmother, who is sick and lives in a house a little far from them. On the way she meets the Big Bad Wolf who challenges her to a race to the granny's house. The Wolf knows two ways, the long and the short; he tricks Little Red Hood by telling her to take the short one and that he would take the long one; cunningly, he teaches her the roads backwards and Little Red Hood unknowingly goes the long way.

Thus, the Wolf arrives at granny's house earlier, pretends to be Little Red Hood and asks if he can come in. Grandma lets her in, since the door is open; the Big Bad Wolf walks in and swallows Grandma in one bite. He then goes to bed to wait for Little Red Hood. Once Little Red Riding Hood arrives at the house, the Wolf—who pretends to be Granny— invites her to be in bed with him and maintains the well-known dialogue with the astonished protagonist:

Little Red Riding Hood - Grandma, what big arms you have!

Big Bad Wolf - They are to hug you better.

Little Red Riding Hood - Grandma, what big legs you have!

Bad Wolf - They are to run better.

Little Red Riding Hood - Grandma, what big ears you have!

Bad Wolf - They are to hear you better.

Little Red Riding Hood - Grandma, what big eyes you have!

Bad Wolf - They are to see you better.

Little Red Riding Hood - Grandma, what big teeth you have!

Bad Wolf - They are to eat you better!

The Big Bad Wolf pounces on Little Red Hood and eats her.