INTRODUCCIÓN

On this occasion I will talk about the United States of North America, what is its culture, typical food, traditions, customs and geography

GEOGRAPHY

THE GENERAL GEOGRAPHIC RELIEF OF THE UNITED STATES RESTS ON THE NORTH AMERICAN PLATE. ITS WEST COAST FORMS THE LIMIT WITH THE PACIFIC PLATE, MAKING IT A MOUNTAINOUS REGION WHERE EARTHQUAKES AND VOLCANIC PHENOMENA ARE FREQUENT. THE EAST COAST, BY CONTRAST, IS FAR FROM INTERPLATE CONTACT, AND MUCH MORE STABLE. THUS, IN GENERAL, THE RELIEF OF THE UNITED STATES IS ORGANIZED, FROM WEST TO EAST, WITH A MOUNTAINOUS REGION, A GREAT CENTRAL PLAINS AND A PLATEAU TO THE EAST.

The United States is the second largest country in the American continent, after Canada, and the third largest in the world, surpassed by Russia and Canada. Located in the central strip of North America, it stretches from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast.

To the north it shares the longest unarmed border in the world (8893 km) with Canada and to the south it borders with Mexico. It is made up of 48 contiguous states, plus Alaska in the northwest and the Hawaiian Islands in the Pacific.

TYPICAL FOOD

The predominant gastronomy in the United States is similar to that of other Western countries. Wheat is the main cereal grain. Traditional American cuisine uses ingredients such as turkey, venison, venison, potatoes, sweet potatoes, corn, and maple syrup, foods eaten by Native Americans and early Europeans. Pork and barbecue, French fries and chocolate chip cookies are hallmarks of American food. Soul food, created by slaves from Africa, is popular with southern Americans and most African-Americans. Syncretic cuisine, such as Louisiana, Cajun, and Tex-Mex cuisine, are the most important in the region. The most representative American dishes, such as apple pie, fried chicken, hamburgers (see: History of the hamburger) and hot dogs derive from recipes from various immigrants. In addition, French fries, Mexican dishes such as tacos, and Italian pasta have entered the market. Americans typically drink coffee or tea, and more than half of the adult population drinks at least one cup a day. The market of the American industries is the one that has caused that the orange juice and the milk are the drinks that are consumed in the breakfast. During the 1980s and 1990s, the average calories consumed per day by Americans increased by 24%; this is due to the creation of fast-food outlets, also unleashing the so-called "obesity epidemic". Non-alcoholic drinks are also very popular; sugary ones provide 9% of the calories consumed per day.
