The Frog Prince
Introduction

to avenge herself she turned him into an ugly ~~monster~~ and put him into a well. Now it happened that the well was in the courtyard of a king's palace and on fine days, when the sun shone warmly, the king's youngest daughter sometimes came there to amuse herself by tossing a golden ball high into the air and catching it as it fell.

Climax

The poor frog watched her running to and fro in the sun-shine. He thought she was the prettiest princess he had ever seen.

King One day, the princess threw the ball up so high that when she stretched out her hand to catch it the ball bounced on the stones on her with some splash into the water. She ran to the edge of the well.
