This place is a very significant place because I was with important people, this photo for me represents love, strength and above all peace, it was a great trip in the distance we can notice some mountains, those mountains are huge and they look imaginary and then we see the sea that degrades from a navy blue color, and reaches a crystalline green color and finally you reach the white foam and you get closer and you reach the sand. The sky is light blue and as you can see in the photo there are no clouds and The sun was not on our side but the day felt very warm.
