TIPOS DE RAZAS

GRANDANESN

The Great Dane is an affectionate dog. He can feel very close and be very faithful to his family, as well as to more frequent visits, and fits in very well in an active family. They quickly alert the family if a stranger approaches their territory, as they make excellent guard dogs.

SAN BERNARDO

Personality. The appellation "good-natured giant" perfectly sums up the spirit of the Saint Bernard. He is an affable, trustworthy, and gentle dog who loves family life. They are also very loyal and hardly bark, although they will defend you and your possessions if necessary.

BOXER

Boxers tend to behave like puppies throughout their lives, so they put up quite a fight. Active, strong, and loyal, they make great pets for the whole family, both adults and children, but they can be boisterous, so they are not recommended in homes with very young children.

DOBERMAN

Cohabitation. Dobermans are strong, energetic dogs that need plenty of exercise. If they don't practice it, they are more likely to become irritable or even aggressive. They can adapt well to life in an apartment if they exercise daily.

ROTTWEILER

The Rottweiler is known for its friendly and fun nature, as well as being very obedient, child-friendly, and extremely cuddly. Despite its naturally calm temperament, in many countries these qualities have been discredited and it is classified as a dangerous breed.

SCHNAUZER

Miniature schnauzers are sturdy, attentive and fearless dogs. They can be very energetic and fight if they run into dogs they don't know. The desire to play of miniature schnauzers makes them ideal dogs for families with well-behaved children.
