

THE CAMERAMAN

Once upon a time there was a man with his son in the river, they met a photographer.

The boy wanted the photographer to take his photo, he cried to have his photo taken. So the dad talked to the photographer.

The boy's father spoke to the photographer and when he saw that the boy was crying for a photo, the photographer agreed to take a photo of him.

The boy continued crying even though the photo had already been taken, until his father realized that what he wanted was a photo with the squirrel.

In the end the child was able to be happy by taking the photo with the squirrel.

