

Once upon a time there was a very tall man wearing a blue coat there was a young boy wearing a red sweater when suddenly he was taking pictures of the boy who looked very happy because he was photographing him with a beautiful camera when out of nowhere the man ran away very fast and for not looking where he stepped he tripped over a stone and the camera whose switch was left on took a very beautiful picture which the boy looked at and liked it.

