Small and Large Species

Sheep

It stands out for its coat adaptable to different climates, its rusticity, high prolificacy and greater meat yield.

Large Species

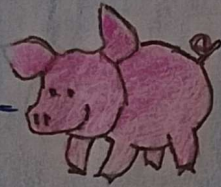

Goat

One of its main characteristics is agility, which allows it to jump and climb perfectly.

Pig

Pigs are short-legged, robust, omnivorous mammals with thick skin sparsely covered with short bristles.

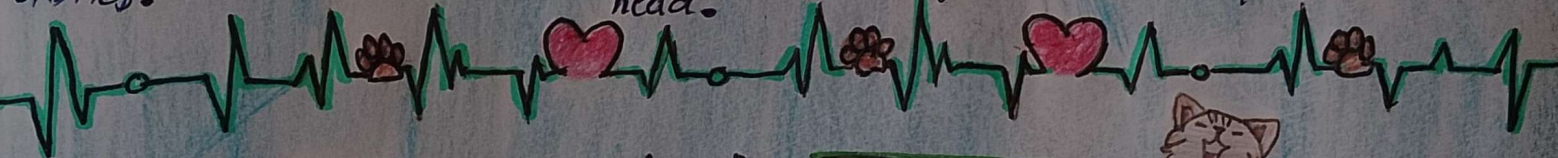

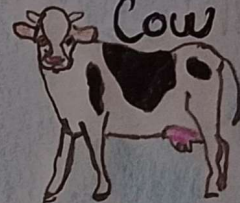

Horse

It is characterized by having long, strong limbs, a barrel-shaped body, and a long neck that supports a large head.

Cow

Cows provide meat, milk, labor, leather and hundreds of other products that people use in everyday life.

Dog

The dog has powerful muscles and a cardiovascular system that allows it to reach high speeds and great resistance.

Small Species

Cat

It has very sharp nails that it uses to hunt and hold down rats and mice. Use your tongue to clean yourself.

Rabbit

It has a body covered with thick, woolly fur, pale brown to gray or reddish in color, which allows it to camouflage itself to avoid its predator.

Duck

It is a bird belonging to the Anatidae family, whose meat is extraordinarily succulent and its demand is constantly growing in our country.

Iguana

Primarily herbivores, iguanas are active during the day and feed on leaves, flowers and fruits. They generally live near water and are excellent swimmers.
