

Alumna: Edith Marcela
Barjau Castellanos

Materia: Ingles IV

Cuatrimestre: 4to

Docente: Lic. José Jesús
Hernández

Converstation

CONVERTATION

Luisa: Look at this leather jacket! It's on sale for $150. Don't you think that's a good price?

Kevin: $150? Yeah, not bad. In euros, that would be around 140 euros or so. But the same jacket in Japan might cost around 16,000 yen.

Luisa: Wow, that's quite a difference! Actually, I've seen some basic t-shirts here in Spain that are super expensive in comparison. A basic brand tee here costs around 40 euros, which is like $42.

Kevin: Yeah, and if we convert that to yen, it would be about 4,500 yen just for a t-shirt! It's interesting how some things are way more expensive depending on the country.

Luisa: Totally. Yesterday I was looking at a skirt on a Japanese clothing site, and it was around 7,000 yen, which is about $47 or 44 euros. Here, a similar brand-name skirt would be almost double.

