Today was an interesting day. I ran into my friend Geo at school. She told me about her recent trip to the beach. She said the weather was perfect and they had a lot of fun. According to her, they swam in the ocean and built sandcastles. She mentioned that her little sisters helped her with the sandcastles and that they looked amazing. I can imagine how happy they were.

After hearing their stories, I got excited about going to the beach. I thought, "If I go to the beach next weekend, I'll build a sandcastle too!" Geo also suggested we plan a trip together. She said, "Let's not wait too long; we should book tickets soon." I quickly agreed because spending time with friends is always fun.

She also told me about a new cafe at the hotel that serves delicious ice cream. This got me thinking about all the treats we could enjoy there after swimming. If we go together, we can eat ice cream and relax in the sun.

In conclusion, today I was reminded of how important it is to spend time with friends and make memories. Life is full of adventures waiting to happen! I hope we can make our beach trip a reality soon.
