Last year was an adventure but the best one was on the road

Last year at my job they sent us to distribute medicines on the Maravilla Tenejapa route.

We left towards our destination, along the way I could see beautiful views.

After 3 hours we arrived at our destination, I delivered many orders liked my partner, we arrived late and things went wrong because the truck's tire got flat, we would have to wait the next day, we went to a hotel to slept, the next one day We got up to go fix the truck, I was happy since I would drive the truck back to the city so I could perfect and control the truck.

When I was driving the truck I was able to differentiate several things, one of them is that you don't get sleepy liked when you are the co-pilot. That made me feel confident in myself and made me even happier, being able to drive from one distance to another without caring about the obstacles, the curves, the holes in the road, and that's how I driving until now.
