Who would say that in one year so many things can happen, that would change your life completely, like meeting people you never thought you would meet again and this happened to me, everything was going normally everything was going normally until I met my childhood friend. It was a joy to be able to talk to her a little since last year I was working to pay for my studies and I didn't spend time with my friends. We spent the whole afternoon talking about our things without realizing that it was already night and we had to say good bye, after agreeing to go out for a walk on the places that we used to go when we were little when we met again, she told me that she had a boyfriend and began to tell me that last night she read a message from her boyfriend asking if she had cheated on him and she denied it, but she told me that her ex wrote her a message last month but she didn't say anything to her boyfriend to not cause problems with him. While we were walking through the country side we saw a cat with blood on its fur. We didn't dare to approach it and all we did was run away from the place, we stopped when we found a park to rest for a while I raised my eyes to the sky, that's when I remembered that I saw a big star on Friday night. When we finished resting, we said goodbye to go home.
