It was a sunny summer day when my sister decided to throw a surprise party for her birthday. While we were all preparing the decorations, she was walking through the park, oblivious to what was happening. While I was blowing up balloons, my friends were arriving with cakes and gifts. The excitement grew in the air. Suddenly, the clock struck five and we all hid behind the furniture, awaiting his arrival. When my sister entered the house, we yelled “surprise!” She froze for a moment, and then her face lit up with happiness. That moment was one of the most memorable of our lives. Laughter and music filled the air as we celebrated together, creating memories we would cherish forever.
